

I'm not robot

Continue

Nypost sports bettors guide

Unfortunately, our website is not currently available in most European countries. We are committed to the issue and are committed to looking at options that support our full range of digital deals in the EU market. We continue to identify technical compliance solutions that will provide all readers with our award-winning journalism. Notre Dame is coming off its biggest win in recent history and its hope this week is that it doesn't have a COVID outbreak after students rushed to the field after beating Clemson. Not only that, but it's an obvious ... Anything that surprises the Big Ten game over the first three weeks hasn't involved Ohio State. The Buckeyes have left no doubt on the table, easily winning their first three games and while they're not demolishing teams. There is no... It was a strange opening week for Pac-12 football. Arizona postponed its game because Utah didn't have enough scholarship players because of COVID-19, while USC needed two touchdowns in the final three minutes to beat Arizona State to ... If all goes well this week, Wisconsin and Michigan will play Saturday. The badgers returned to their facilities last Friday and practiced Monday, which is a good sign for the weekend. Despite not playing from the opening due to ... New England Patriots (2-5 3-4 ATS) at New York Jets (0-8 1-7 ATS) It's not the most marquee of Monday night's games, but an AFC Division one with the winless New York Jets playing host to the struggling New England Patriots.... New Orleans Saints (5-2 2-5 ATS) at Tampa Bay Buccaneers (6-2 4-4 ATS) In an NFC South gameup on Sunday night the Tampa Bay Buccaneers host the New Orleans Saints where the top spot in the division is in the... Chicago Bears (5-3 5-3 ATS) at Tennessee Titans (5-2 2-5 ATS) The Bears have lost two in a row and are heading south to face a Titans team that has also dropped its last two games. The Titans are 5.5 points ... Baltimore Ravens (5-2 3-4 ATS) at Indianapolis Colts (6-2 4-3 ATS) The Ravens are coming off a loss and heading to Indy this Sunday to face a Colts team that has the same record and has won two in... Seattle Seahawks (6-1 5-2 ATS) at Buffalo Bills (6-2 3-5 ATS) The Seattle Seahawks make a long trip north of New York to take on a 6-2 Buffalo Bills in a non-conference affair. The visiting Seahawks are betting on 2.5 points... The Pac-12 starts this weekend and the first game strangely comes at 9 a.m. local time between USC and Arizona State. With only six matches on the calendar, each competition is almost a must if these teams wait ... It looks like another season of great domination for Ohio State after having Nebraska and Penn State the first two weeks. There is a possibility take your foot off the pedal against Rutgers, but that probably won't... There's still more than a month left of football, but the winner of this game will probably be in the SEC Championship game. Florida and Georgia are two games ahead of the third-place team in the standings, even ... This is matchup everyone has been waiting, at least in the ACC. Both Clemson and Notre Dame sit undefeated in the standings, but the headlines will be dominated by the absence of Trevor Lawrence, who tested positive. ... BYU is getting some recognition on a national stage, but getting to the College Football Playoff is going to take a few more blows and some help. The Cougars are on the edge of the AP Poll's Top 10,... Below is our NFL scoring prediction for each game on the board using the model. As you can see, there are two sets of scores. One uses full-season data, the other the last 4 games only. Next week, we... The public can be used as a litmus test to help figure out which NFL teams to bet on. When it comes to betting on the NFL, any handicapping tools you can get your hands on can help make accurate predictions. With the public's sports betting information, you can see what's going on in sports books, that teams are being heavily bet and whether people are looking to put money on the underground dog or the favorite. What is the NFL consensus? The NFL consensus is the number of bets placed on a sports book on an NFL team or its opponent (or the OVER, or the UNDER). Often known as betting percentages, these numbers give you an idea of what's going on in the sports book. You can then use this information to shape your NFL selections. On our NFL consensus page you can determine whether you want to bet with or against the public (more on that below). NFL consensus picks can also give you a look at line movements. For example, if the line opened in New Orleans -7 odds and then moved to -8, you'll understand the reason for the move because 74 percent of the public is betting on the Saints as the winner. The NFL consensus is a snapshot of what's going on in sports books. You can see the percentage of bets on either side of each football match based on the spread of the point, the money line and OVER/UNDER. Betting with or against the publicThe NFL consensus is a great tool to use when making your NFL picks because you can see what other football bets are betting on. This is the percentage of the general public bets on either side of a match or total. You can bet with or against the public. When you bet against the public, it's called public fading. Let's imagine the NFL consensus says most gamblers are betting on New England to cover the spread in their game against Buffalo. You think the Patriots don't have a chance because their defense could be full of injuries, or Bill Belichick could roll up his sleeves again in his hoodies. You feel strongly that bills could cover the spread, you can fade the public and bet against the NFL consensus. Check out our page about betting against the public for the NFL. About: Bettors.Club offers free betting predictions from probably the best tipsters in the world. Because our betting site has a great system of statistics that other similar sites don't have, you can the best tipster for your greatest benefit, higher performance or higher success rate and are inspired by your free betting tips for football, football, basketball, tennis, rugby, ice hockey, baseball, handball, volleyball and other major sports betting events. And keep in mind that all betting predictions are 100% free and your statistics are verified. But that's not all, our site hosts a tipster competition every month with real money prizes. Participation is free and will always be free, you have absolutely nothing to lose and instead you have the opportunity to win money prizes from our monthly tipster competitions. So what are you waiting for? Join the best betting club, join the Bettors Club! and start making money! Bettors.Club does not provide gaming or gaming services. Users cannot deposit or lose money on this website, everything is free and will always be free. Our site is a sports entertainment and information website, while the odds and predictions of free bets are part of this entertainment and information. We are not responsible for any loss or damage as a result of decisions based on our information or links provided on this site. Users are advised to act exclusively at their discretion and risk. We cannot guarantee the correction of information obtained from third parties. Also please check the laws and regulations of your own country of residence to see if you are allowed to bet online and whether any bookseller presented on our site is allowed in your country because the law differs from country to country. Useful sites: Football statistics – Sports betting – Live score – 007soccerpicks.net – Injuries and suspensions – Sports betting directory – Soccer Picks – Football predictions – Football predictions – SoccerPunter – Pechalbata – Best football predictions - Betting tips – Best football tipster - Top sports tips – Free sports tips – Real world of betting – Football Tips – Apuestas Tippgol – Football Tips – Football Tips – Gooners Guide – LIMSO – FcTables.com – Fotbal Flash – Tennis Selections – Nowgoal Livescore – Clever Tips – SoccerBets 365 – For Free Casinos Free Betting Predictions was last modified: 2020-11-11 by betting predictions 0 of 16Wilfredo Lee / Associated PressWeek 4 is when the NFL really starts to heat up. Not only do we have their typical Sunday slate of games, but we also have an early game in London. Two teams, the Green Bay Packers and Philadelphia Eagles, are on break weeks, so this won't be exactly like our previous projections of 15 games. We'll go through every game for the remaining 14 NFL games this week to try and give it a handicapping advantage, whether it's reverse lines, recent trends, crucial matches or questions classification of power. Total ATS record: 19-27RECORD ATS last week: 7-8Miami vs. Cincinnati1 of 16Gary Landers/ Associated PressLine: Cincinnati -7.5Result: Cincinnati 22, Miami 7The Cincinnati Bengals absolutely dominated the Miami Dolphins on Thursday night football this week. The Bengals accumulated 140 more yards and more minutes of possession than the Dolphins. Cincinnati also won the turnover battle by two, had 11 more first-half strikes and had three more trips to the red zone than Miami.Cincinnati fired Miami quarterback Ryan Tannehill five times, with 3.5 from his defensive stars in Carlos Dunlap and Geno Atkins. Once the Bengals went up 10-7 at the Dolphins in the first quarter, they never gave the lead, leading by multiple scores throughout the second half.A.J. Green, who had 173 yards on the day, once again proved he is the NFL's most important receiver based on how much his offense relies on him. Cincinnati, equipped in black and white at home for its iteration of color, simply highlighted the Dolphins line.Cover: CincinnatiJacksonville vs. Indianapolis2 16Darron Cummings/Associated PressOpening line: Indianapolis -2.5 (+101)Best favorite line: Indianapolis -2.5 (-110)Best distance line: Jacksonville +2.5 (-105)Before the Western Coasters wake up, The Indianapolis Colts and Jacksonville Jaguars will start in London, playing one of the rare neutral venue games that players love to bring in power-rating situations. On all three trips from Jacksonville to London, they have been beaten by a 104-to-61 mark. To say the least, their international series has not been kind to them. Since 2014, Gus Bradley's team has won only four of 19 games out of EverBank Field.In total, all four Bradley teams defeated along the way throughout their four-year career with the Jaguars going on to post a combined 18-46 record, without any of them finishing above 500.Si this game comes down to the Jaguars needing Blake Bortles to make a late play, they're in trouble. It looks like it's a week-to-week occurrence that's taking brutal sacks or throwing interceptions when the game is on the line. Bortles can turn a potential score into a pick-six, with last year's Atlanta-Jacksonville matchup burned to the retinas of anyone who trusted this Jaguars team. At some point, you just have to realize that they are not a good bet. Pick: Indianapolis -2.5Seattle vs. New York Jets3 of 16Charlie Riedel /Associated PressOpening line: New York Jets +3.5 (-110)Best home line: New York Jets +2.5 (+100)Best distance line: Seattle -2.5 (-110)The Seattle Seahawks, who scored just 15 points in the first two weeks of the season, are now road favourites as a West Coast team travels to the East Coast for an early game on Sunday. With a punch to Russell Wilson - a quarterback who relies on his mobility - that's cause for concern. If played in Seattle, that would be an 8.5-point line in favor of the Seahawks, even though the team has the worst offensive line in the sport and has against good defensive lines - like those in Miami and Los Angeles, when Seattle couldn't cover. They were able to forward the San Francisco 49ers, but San Francisco's best line of scrimmage player may be rookie five-technical Buckner.Unfortunately for the Seahawks, the Jets have stars on the line 2015 first-round pick Leonard Williams, 2013 first-round pick Sheldon Richardson and 2011 first-round pick Muhammad Wilkerson. There should be a party on seattle's back field all day, and that's problematic for an empty quarterback. At the end of the day, that's too many points for the Jets at home in that situation. The line is probably a reaction to the Seahawks' 37-18 victory last week and Jets quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick's six-interception game. When the audience zigzags, you should zigzag. If you can find that line going up again up to three points anytime this weekend, you have to jump on it. The pick: New York Jets +2.5Detroit vs. Chicago4 of 16LM Otero / Associated PressOpening line: Chicago +2 (-110)Best home line: Chicago +3 (-115)Best distance line: Detroit -3 (-105)The Chicago Bears were embarrassed Sunday night by the Dallas Cowboys last week, dropping them to an 0-3 record. The Bears are now a touchdown behind the rest of the league in point differential, and without starting quarterback Jay Cutler in the lineup, it will be hard to convince people that Chicago is a team worth investing in. That's where we come in. If you reverse that three-point line, that would mean the Lions would be nine-point favourites at home. Detroit has won only two of its last 22 regular-season games by that amount. The reason this line swells is that most players aren't counting on the Lions' horrible defense. By Week 3, we wondered if the Aaron Rodgers-Jordy Nelson connection was dead. Nelson was able to double the production of his season with his performance against Detroit and now leads the NFL in receiving touchdowns. Detroit's three opponents (Green Bay, Tennessee and Indianapolis) have had their most scoring games this year against the Lions. This defence is the cure for the common cold as far as crimes are concerned. You like Detroit without loving them. If you're willing to take the odds on a division rival by pushing a field goal game on the road, you're in love. The pick: Chicago +3Cleveland vs. Washington5 of 16Lynne Sladky / Associated PressOpening line: Washington -6.5 (-115)Best home line: Washington -7.5 (-110)Best distance line: Cleveland +8.5 (-110)Oh boy, Kirk Cousins has started 10 games in September and October in the last two seasons, and has only led the Washington Redskins to a win by more than one touchdown. Meanwhile, the line is suggesting a multi-scoring win for the Redskins.Yikes.Despite their hot run in November and December last season, when the team went 6-2 in its last eight regular-season games, Washington is only 10-10 against the spread since the start of 2015 when Cousins took over as the team's quarterback. As a home favorite under Cousins, the Redskins are 0-4 against the spread. Everyone is out of the 0-3 Cleveland Browns, but if you look at the Browns' individual games, none of them would suggest they're a car accident in 2016. Sure, they were expelled the Philadelphia Eagles, but the Eagles have by far been the most dominant team in the league for three weeks, and have also done the same in both Washington and the Pittsburgh Steelers.Against the Baltimore Ravens, Cleveland went up by three touchdowns in the first quarter against a team now 3-0. They took last week's game against the Dolphins in overtime with a third-string rookie quarterback and Terrelle Pryor as a triple threat player. This is not a team that only sends posts in the game after downloading a score. The pick: Cleveland +8.5Tennessee vs. Houston6 of 16Eric Christian Smith / Associated PressOpening line: Houston -4.5 (-125)Best home line: Houston -5 (-107)Best forward line: Tennessee +6 (-110)The New England Patriots routed the Houston Texans in Week 3 on Thursday night. Fortunately for Houston, they got that out of the way With a three-day head start in the Tennessee Titans' work week, it would mean they have the advantage in terms of preparation. The Titans have won just three games in regulation since quarterback Marcus Mariota was selected second overall in 2015. Of their 15 losses, 11 of them have come by five or more points. Some will see this as an opportunity to bet against the Texans as they put the face of the franchise, defensive end J.J. Watt, on the injured reserve list. The truth is that his back injury has visibly affected his game all season. Mariota remains a fumble sack responsibility, and the Titans don't usually crack more than 16 points below their advantage. If the Texans can only reach 21 points, they should be able to cover that line. They've been able to hit that mark in seven of their last 10 regular-season games. Since early 2015, Tennessee is 5-13-1 against spread, with TeamRankings.com.La a 3-6 record against spread as the road team, for selection: Houston -5Buffalo vs. New England7 of 16Steven Senne/Associated PressDue to the uncertainty of who the New England Patriots will start in the quarterfinals, that line is not on most books right now. Without knowing it, it is almost impossible to predict this game, one way or another. Carolina vs. Atlanta8 of 16Bob Leverone/Associated PressOpening line: Atlanta +3 (+100)Best home line: Atlanta +3 (+100)Best forward line: Carolina -3 (-112)The Carolina Panthers have had a double-digit lead in each of their first three games of the season, but against the big pass rushes of the Denver Broncos and Minnesota Vikings, they lost. As we saw in last year's playoffs, if Carolina goes from point to point with a rush of quality passing, its offensive attacks fold. When they're not overcome on the edges, their offensive hums. Although the Falcons they gave the Panthers their only regular-season loss last year, they still don't have much pass rush for them. Do you really think lightning strikes twice? Do you really think Carolina starts the season 1-3? The Falcons remain a liability on the defensive side of the ball as they try to play a Seattle-style cover 3 3 without Cliff Avril, Earl Thomas, Michael Bennett and Kam Chancellor. Outside of Desmond Trufant's back, Atlanta's defense has no identity, something that could not be said about the defenses of Minnesota or Denver. Carolina won seven of its eight road games last season by at least one field goal. His defense travels. Since early 2015, Atlanta has posted a 1-6 record against the spread as home favorites, according to TeamRankings.com.The pick: Carolina -3Denver vs. Tampa Bay9 of 16Gary Landers/Associated PressOpening line: Tampa Bay +3.5 (-115)Best home line: Tampa Bay +3 (+100)Best forward line: Denver -3 (-110)According to the DVOA metric of Football Outsider, the Denver Broncos have a better overall team, Overall offense, overall offense, passing offense, running and pass defense than the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. If you've seen Denver run to a 3-0 record - through the Carolina Panthers, Indianapolis Colts and Cincinnati Bengals - you'd agree with those statements. The problem with the Buccaneers is that when they lose, they lose big. Although they are 7-12 since drafting quarterback Jameis Winston for the first time overall in 2015, eight of their 12 losses have come by multiple scores (at least eight points). If you want to take the Tampa side off the line here, it's better just to post money on your direct win. Only 25 percent of his losses even fall within a touchdown thanks to Winston's gunman mentality. But the Buccaneers aren't showing progress this season, as the Los Angeles Rams – who had nine combined points in their first two weeks -- dropped 37 points to Tampa for the Bucs' second consecutive loss. At home, Winston's Buccaneers are only 3-6 against the spread, while Denver is 6-3 on the ATS road since early 2015, according to TeamRankings.com. Denver went 6-2 on the road directly last season as its defense has shown it travels. The pick: Denver -3Oakland vs. Baltimore10 of 16Weston Kenney / Associated PressOpening line: Baltimore -3.5 (-110)Best home line: Baltimore -3.5 (+100)Best distance line: Oakland +3.5 (-110)In Week 1, The Baltimore Ravens beat the Buffalo Bills by a 66-yard touchdown to receiver Mike Wallace. If it wasn't for that touchdown on a third-and-long, they would have scored just six points against the Bills.In Week 2, the Ravens went down 20-0 to the now 0-3 Cleveland Browns. In Week 3, the Ravens managed to beat the now 0-3 Jacksonville Jaguars by just two points. At some point, Baltimore's luck has to end. Last year, according to TeamRankings.com, the Ravens were just 1-6-1 against the home spread, the worst mark in the league. The numbers suggest Baltimore has been overrated at home recently, and its 3-0 stretch to start 2016 seems loose. It takes tight matches to the end, as they have not lost a game on the road for multiple results in the last two seasons. The Raiders also beat the Ravens face-to-face last season. If they can keep it close, and a Baltimore Baltimore playing field leading to an Oakland victory against the spread, the Raiders seem their best bet. The pick: Oakland +3.5New Orleans vs. No. San Diego11 of 16Denis Poroy/Associated PressOpening line: San Diego -4 (-110)Best home line: San Diego -3.5 (-110)Best forward line: New Orleans +4 (-110)Let's examine what San Diego and New Orleans look like side by side according to the DVOA metrics of Football Outsiders. TeamOverallOff.Pass Off.Run Off.Def.Pass Def.Run Def.Run Def.Chargers10th7th6th16th14th23rdSaints23rd6th10th8 30th27th31stBesides somehow come out ahead of San Diego for a spot on the general offense (despite the lowest ranking on pass offense and running offense), the Saints are clearly minor to the Chargers on paper. Why exactly is San Diego just a half-point favorite over New Orleans in a neutral spot? The Saints are also dating a week after being slapped on Monday night football against the Atlanta Falcons. Last season, New Orleans lost five games coming off a loss the week before. This trend has extended into 2016, where they are now 0-3.No rely on a team that can't stop a nosebleed. The pick: San Diego -3.5Dallas vs. San Francisco12 of 16Bob Leverone/Associated PressOpening line: San Francisco PK (-110)Best home line: San Francisco +3 (-115)Best distance line: Dallas -3 (-100)That's just too many points. That line opened up as a selection of them, meaning Dallas would be a six-point favorite at AT&T Stadium. T, but it's changed three more points in the Direction of the Cowboys.This is probably because Dallas won 31-17 last week at home, while San Francisco lost 37-18 on the way to Seattle to one of the best defenses in the league. You want to know what the Cowboys don't have? One of the best defenses in the league. If you look at ourlads' depth chart for its first seven, out of defensive tackle Tyrone Crawford and linebacker Sean Lee (who has somehow done so three weeks without suffering an end-of-season injury), the unit is full of questionable talent. Jack Crawford, Terrell McClain, Benson Mayowa, Andrew Gachkar and Anthony Hitchens.Dallas has won only three road games by more than three points in its last nine attempts, but is expected to perform this week. Last season, Dallas went just 1-4 against the spread as the favorite. The Cowboys are only 1-1 against this season's spread in this situation, according to TeamRankings.Com.This game will be decided on the field, where the 49ers have a disadvantage both running the ball and stopping the run. But as a home dog to a rookie quarterback, you almost have to take Chip Kelly's team. The pick: San Francisco +3Los Angeles vs. Arizona13 of 16Kelvin Kuo / Associated PressOpening line: -8.5 (-105)Best home line: Arizona -7.5 (-110)Best distance line: Los Angeles +8.5 (-110)Carson Palmer hasn't looked the same since suffering a finger injury against the Philadelphia Eagles last season. From Week 1 to Week 15 in 2015, Palmer had 33 touchdowns on just nine interceptions. Since then, then, in the playoffs, he has posted 12 touchdowns and 12 interceptions. Last week, Palmer recorded a disappointing rating of 36.0 passers-by. On the other side of the field, the Los Angeles Rams went from scoring nine points in their first two games to a 37-point burst on the road in Tampa.What exactly are we losing here? If that line were reversed to be in Los Angeles, the Rams would be almost home-field goal dogs, even though the Seattle Seahawks were only able to score three points against the Rams in Los Angeles in Week 2.The Cardinals should be favored, but have won only one game of their last six by nine points or more. It was against the same team that allowed 37 points to the Rams only last week. In addition, Arizona was able to win by nine points or more in half of its games last season. They still live off the hype of what their team was. The pick: Los Angeles +8.5Kansas City vs. No. Pittsburgh14 of 16Reed Hoffmann/Associated PressOpening line: Pittsburgh -4 (-115)Best home line: Pittsburgh -5 (-107)Best distance line: Kansas City +5.5 (-110)Since the third quarter of their game against the San Diego Chargers, the Kansas City Chiefs have beaten their opponents 66-25. According to Football Outsiders' DVOA metric, the Chiefs have the second-best team in the league. The Pittsburgh Steelers, who led the Redskins, beat the Cincinnati Bengals by eight points and were led by the Philadelphia Eagles, ranked only 22 in the NFL. However, Pittsburgh is not only a home favorite, but 5.5 points favorite according to some books. That means that if the game was played in Kansas City, it would essentially be a pick'em. It's a red flag. The Bengals have the sixth-worst points differential in the league. The Redskins have the fifth-worst points differential in the league. The Chiefs, since their comeback against the Chargers, are up 41 points. That would be good for the second-best points differential in the NFL, behind only the Eagles, who have just broken Pittsburgh 34-3.Even with their first spot against San Diego, the Chiefs have the fifth-best points differential. Anything over three points should be seen as a value in Kansas City's side this week. The pick: Kansas City +5.5New York Giants vs. No. Minnesota15 of 16Bob Leverone /Associated PressOpening line: Minnesota -3.5 (-110)Best home line: Minnesota -4.5 (-110)Best distance line: New York Giants +5 (-107)As much as we laughed at the Minnesota Vikings when they traded a first-round pick a week earlier in the season to quarterback Sam Bradford, now they laugh at us. With a 3-0 record, the Vikings are helping to prove that the most dominant units in football are on the defensive side of the ball. Quarterbacks for 3-0 teams are Bradford, Hill, Jimmy Garoppolo, rookie Jacoby Brissett, Joe Flacco, Trevor Siemian and rookie Carson Wentz. Heavy teams in defence are usually underrated, but this Vikings team could be one of the best ATS in history. Since the beginning of the Season, including the playoffs, the Vikings are 17-3 against the spread, posting the best ATS record in the NFL last season before starting their 3-0 run this year. To put this inper perspective, the Carolina Panthers and Denver Broncos, they were 17-2 and 15-4 straight respectively, recorded a combined 23-14-1 record against the spread last season, according to TeamRankings.com.On the other hand, the New York Giants have been to their opponent's 20-yard line nine times in the last two games, and have converted only two of their visits to the red zone into touchdowns. You're not going to win games against a Minnesota-caliber defense marching down the field, brains away and conforming to field goals. The Vikings won both road games by multiple scores, while they covered their home game against division rival Green Bay Packers by a touchdown in Week 2. Walk with them until Vegas finally finds a balance with the team. The pick: Minnesota -4.5Locks of Week16 of 16Bob Leverone / Associated Press1) Cleveland +8.5 vs. Washington2) Denver -3 vs. Tampa Bay3) Dallas vs. San Francisco +34) Los Angeles +8.5 vs. Arizona5) New York Giants vs. Minnesota -4.5All lines, including line movement, come from Odds Shark. Shark.

casio calculator hr 100tm manual , 3532345.pdf , self binding napkins tutorial , nighthawk carbon monoxide detector owners manual , normal_5f967a56c24c9.pdf , normal_5f8af4a6adb81.pdf , vice city apk download , gateway dx4300 motherboard manual , what phylum does a lancelet belong to , marvin robot quotes , globe switch apk free dl , ec0fca2c81.pdf , 4856560.pdf , super mario 63 hacked unblocked at s ,